Col. Seifert's Boy's Remarkable Recovery from a Shot.

Fifteen-year-old Eddie Selfert, the son of Col. A. E. Seifert, of 10 West Ninetieth street, lives to tell a tale of a most remarkable re-covery from an accident that was pronounced surely fatal by a dozen eminent physicians and surgeons.

Young Seifert is a bright, handsome boy. but his broad, smooth brow is marred by an | Xavier's Church was crowded. ugly scar just over the right eye. This scar indicates the point where on June 16 a rifle bullet crashed through the frontal bone, and, splitting into halves, went tearing through his brain, lodging at points six inches from J. F. Chapman, who has been on trial before the place of entrance and four inches apart. The accident occurred near Valley Forge, in the Catskills. Col. Seifert and family were summering there, and Eddle and another lad were out for a day's hunting. Luck was not good, and the boys separated. The other lad heard the report of Eddle's rifle and hurried to rejoin him to learn what game had been brought to earth.

He found Eddle lying face downward in was before the shooting.

Col. Selfert's family physician and the most expert surgeons were called to attend the boy. They probed and found that one-hair the bullet had taken an upward course and ledged in the brain one and a half inches from the inner wall of the skull, while the other haif had gone straight into the brain and lodged midway between the ear and the top of the head.

The surgeons probed with an electric probe, but could not extract the pieces of lead, while brain matter oozed out of the deafful wound. They said Eddle's death was certain.

The isd was still alive on June 20, and Col. Selfert determined to make one more effort. He took another doctor to Valley Forgo, who found a splinter of bohe pressing on the brain at the mouth of the wound and smail particles of bone irritating the wounds along the whole course of the bullets. These were removed. Eddie lingered still in the land of the liv-

Eddie Hogered still in the land of the living on July 13, but he could eat nothing, was steadily weakening under fever, and meningtis was developing. The lad was brought home, and on July 4 the wound was opened, cleaned and disinfected.

A hole a quarter of an inch across was bored in the boy's skull, following the course of the builet, and tubes were inserted for draining off the pusand portions of brain matter which were constantly sloughing off. At last the builet became encysted, the flow finally ceased, and at last, on July 11, Dr. Henel declared the boy to be on the road to final recovery. overy.
